

Abstract

The thesis interprets and analyses the results of the explorational survey, which deals how people with intellectual disabilities reflect on selected religious terms. The target of this thesis is to chart the opinions, definitions and attitudes of the people with intellectual disabilities to the selected religious categories. The theoretical part of the thesis deals not only of problems of spiritual life, meetings, dialogues and interviews with people with intellectual disabilities but solves their specific qualities and their role in the catholic community too. The exploration part presents two researches – with worshippers people with intellectual disabilities and worshippers people without disabilities. In the end of the thesis the explorational survey defines differences between both groups. The thesis uses the method of the qualitative research, concretely the method of the semistructured interview and the method of the group discussion.
