

Writing skills are an important element of mastering a foreign language. In this thesis various methods used to develop writing skills in a foreign language are described – from traditional to alternative, such as creative writing technics. The aim of this thesis is to evaluate the effectiveness of the blended learning method in the development of writing skills in foreign/second language. For these purposes, the thesis analyses texts created by non-native speakers in the blended learning course WRILAB2.