

In the present work I'm describing construction of the computer game which is featured by using real time rendering. The work is targeted for implementation on cell phones with Symbian® OS. The work describes techniques of software rendering of threedimensional scene, vector animation and managing and representation of used data. Realization of simple artificial intelligence or multiplayer support is described too. All these features are implemented in attached application.