

The bachelor thesis is focused on creating of application for mobile phones, which provides to view map of the Czech Republic represented by vector data. Creation of vector data is not a part of this thesis, application uses already finished map. Processing of vector data and displaying of them is main point of thesis. Application has to use algorithms, which will enable fast work with map despite of limited sources of unit.