

Informed consent is one of the most important institutes of medical law and medical ethics. Any medical procedure may be performed only with the free consent of the patient and the patient must be appropriately doctor informed about all circumstances procedure which should subsequently based on the diagnosis undergo. The patient has the right to withdraw your consent at any time