

Contemporary development of Islamist groups, and those Middle Eastern above all, shows, that these often gain wide support from local population. This situation appears particularly, if they don't use all their power on leading armed jihad, but also look after creation of nets of facilities providing help to their supporters, from distribution of needs for living to construction of housing, hospitals and schools. In Middle Eastern societies public opinion often doesn't see those, who fight against local ruthless ruler, or against foreign invader, and use terrorist methods in their activity, as rogues. In some cases they enjoy status of heroes, who do right, and icons.

147