

The thesis describes the genesis, programme and activityx of Alternative für Deutschland. It analyzes its position in the German political systém espacially when concerning with the term of antisystem or antiestablishment political movement. It describes the reasons leading to the genesis and partial succes of this new party. It analyzes in detail the programme of AfD as it is described in programme documents of the party. The thesis deals further not only with the Picture of this party in media, but also with the problém of extremism which is also partially connected with AfD