

Abstract: In this thesis we study projective perspective on planar euclidean geometry. First we take an euclidean construction and transform it into the projective language. Then we discover and show principles of this transformation. We show equivalence between complex points  $I, J$  and some euclidean structures. Moreover we study conics, triangles, polygons and circles. We build this thesis on examples.