The assignment is of fair difficulty, and a lot of work has been done in the subject in the scientific community. The Author implemented one of the papers' algorithms. The thesis is critically lacking substance, like objective comparisons with several techniques or addressing shortcomings of the chosen approach. With 18 pages net content, it is by far not extensive enough.

Adequate writing style, problems with using correct articles, references difficult to find in bibliography because of citation style. Missing figure captions and byline. The Thesis contains a limited review of the state of the art, the description of one technique (Lu et. al. 2012), and a description of its implementation. Results are compared to a CNN-based technique, with the comparison lacking objective criteria. The problem analysis is missing.
