

The aim of the work is to review security risks of potential attacks upon wireless networks. To draw up detailed list and propose sufficient methods for defend against them. Instruction, which would help to fast recognition type of an attack on given network together with instruction which would minimize impact of these attacks on users, should be a part of the work.