

Annotation

The bachelor's thesis reports about home nursing. Agencies offered the home nursing work successfully many years and meet many satisfied clients. Regardless the awareness of this nursing activity is not at such level, which it rates. The thesis familiarise with the history, forms, the activity and the importance of the home nursing. The nursing process is a significant activity of a nurse in the home nursing. The behaviour and the method of communication between the nurse and the patient significantly influence the information factor in the home nursing.

Focus of the thesis lies in a quantitative exploratory survey about the awareness of the agencies offered the home nursing. The survey is specifically based on findings of knowledge in four groups. The first group is represented by the nurses worked in various departments of the Regional Hospital in Pardubice. The second group is represented by the patients hospitalized in departments of the Regional Hospital in Pardubice. The third group is represented by the clients of agencies offered the home nursing in Pardubice. The fourth group is represented by the inhabitant of Pardubice city.