

Annotation

This Bachelor paper concerns the problems with putting a treatment into practice in our social system. The paper points out that the documentation is also a part of the treatment procedure and that it is needed in arranging the qualified care about clients.

In the first part there are aims of care documentation and characteristics of problems.

The theoretic part concerns the method of treatment procedure and documentation from which the demand, purposes and aims flow.

It also evaluates the conditions which are essential to make the treatment documentation.

Important part of this paper concerns the problems with putting the changes into the care, attitude of team care members and matches each steps of reorganization in theory and in use.

The empirical part describes an attitude of team care members towards the documentation, their willingness in education and how to make the reputation of this care better. Mainly the quality of client's care.