

This thesis describes management of oral hygiene in the group of patients with deficit of self-care. In the theoretical part there is an attention payed to patient's needs in the area of oral/dental hygienic care and procedures of implementation of dental and hygienic care in hospitals.

Research is oriented on patients and their experiences with oral hygiene and dental care in course of the hospitalization. This research study is a primary elaboration of this subjekt in the Czech Republic.