

ABSTRACT

This work focuses on the first comprehensive describing of the history of the school in Mlazice. Everything is set within the wider framework of the development of the village and its immediate surroundings. There are also circumstances that contributed to the establishment of this school. Some chapters summarize the history of Czech education and the historical development of Mlazice and its surroundings, with an emphasis on these circumstances.

The school in Mlazice was founded in 1902. Most of the materials are taken from the fund of the district archive in Mělník. Based on the preserved school chronicles from 1902-1973, the development of a small village school is shown.

The history of this also reflects the individual specifics of the historical periods that the school went through. At first, only men taught here, and gradually women were added. In the last year, which is carried out in chronicles, only women have taught here.

I also tried to highlight more important celebrations and other events. Most of the children of the workers went to this school, so lectures and trips at the beginning were not much organized. Chronicles also contain what donations the school has supported. These gifts were, among other things, used for children of poorer families to be able to be better educated.

The school has a total of four chronicles of one of which is from the period of The Nazi occupation. In this chronicle there are brief entries without a personal character.

The young school is still five classes.
