Diamond principles and the generalized continuum hypothesis are assertions related to infinite combinatorics. This thesis studies various connections between these assertions. From numerous formulations of diamond principles, it explicitly mentions exactly two of them: ♢₅ and ♢₅*. Apart from an overview of the basic notions involved in this study, the thesis also contains a concise proof of Shelah’s theorem published in the paper “Diamonds” in 2010.