

Abstract

The thesis „Employment Policy by Social Democratic Ministers Jaromír Nečas and Michaela Marksová-Tominová“ deals with employment policy and joins recent and historical view on the topic. The thesis contains two case studies: The first aims at the first half of the 20th century and deals with social democratic politician Jaromír Nečas, concerns his views and the programme of the former Czechoslovak Social Democratic Workers' Party. The second part aims at the present employment policy of the minister Michaela Marksová-Tominová. It focuses on the programme of the present social democratic party and on strategic governmental documents. The last part of the thesis compares instruments and means used to deal with unemployment by these ministers.
