

Abstract

Title

Analysis of police district department activity in Czech Republic

Objectives

The objective of this bachelor's thesis is to analyse the activity of the Czech Republic police district department in Náchod. The next objective is to individually describe other activities, which are done by the police officers during their service on this police district department.

Methods

The methods used in this bachelor thesis are information research and its following recherche and interview method

Results

The results of this thesis are informations about Czech police district department activity in Náchod. The next results are inclusions of police district departments into the structure of Czech Republic Police and the summary of informations about Czech Republic Police history till present.

Keywords

analysis, activity, police, department, district