

Abstract

The bachelor's thesis entitled Simplified Process of Naturalization of Foreign Hungarians and Its Influence on Hungarian Parliamentary Elections in 2018 is a one-case descriptive-analytical study of the influence of minority Hungarian voters on Hungarian parliamentary elections in 2018. The thesis deals with the activistic naturalization policies of the Hungarian kin-state and its kin-minorities and with the issue of their partial suffrage. In order to gain a deeper understanding of the context, the work also narrates the historical development of the minority and naturalization policies of post-revolutionary Hungarian governments and analyzes the electoral system of the state. The conclusion of this bachelor thesis contains a discussion and comparison of the results of the last two parliamentary elections and their link to the new naturalization policies. The conclusion contains verification or falsification of the hypothesis: In 2018, newly naturalized foreign Hungarians helped the Fidezs-KDNP coalition to a constitutional majority in the parliament.
