

Main aims:

- to create a compact view of the field of competencies of workers providing direct care in homes for the elderly in the context of personal standards of quality
- to apply the method of “job analysis” to the profession of “worker providing direct care” in the home for the elderly
- to reflect the view of experts on the applicability of this method during the process of implementing personal standards into the homes for the elderly.