

ANNOTATION

PECHAROVÁ, Klára. Alternative Form of Home schooling

Prague, 2020. Diploma thesis. Charles University Prague

The diploma thesis deals with the issue of individual (home) education in the Czech Republic. It aims to introduce an alternative form of the approach to home education, where the implementation is transferred to an educational association. In the theoretical part, the work specifies the basic concepts and describes the mentioned issues. It also clarifies the legislative approach and compares it with other approaches to individual (home) education both in the Czech Republic and abroad. The main part of the work is focused on the presentation of the possibility of home education through an educational association.

The research part of the thesis covers the processing of this issue from the perspective of legal representatives. As a research method, the work uses quantitative analysis of data obtained in the form of questionnaires filled out by parents of pupils in individual (home) education who attend the educational association KT 19 registered association. This research is supplemented by interviews with pedagogical staff working in the educational association.

The main benefit for special pedagogical theory and praxis is the insight into the contribution of community education as an alternative form of individual (home) education.