

Abstract:

The present work deals with the Spanish prepositions por and para. Subject of our research is to define cases in which it is possible to use the prepositions and determine the difference between their meanings. By means of analysis of language corpus, we observe which meanings do the prepositions have and how are they translated into Czech. We investigate if there exist their specific Czech equivalents and whether it is possible to distinguish the meaning of por and para in Czech language.
