

This thesis deals with the design of programming language specialized in visualisation of graph algorithms, creating its interpreter and integrated development environment. The aim was to make the created program usable for education of graph algorithms and their implementation, especially at high school. Based on didactic knowledge, we designed language similar to Pascal, but adapted for the needs of graph algorithms. Part of the thesis is also brief introduction to interpreters and several exemplary graphs and algorithms illustrating work with our program.