

Abstract

This diploma thesis deals with the issue of non-consensual pornography, which consist in the publication of intimate images or recordings without consent of the person depicted. This phenomenon strongly infringes the individual's right to privacy and to informational self-determination. The objective of this paper is to define the phenomenon explored, to specify the breached fundamental rights, and to summarize the legal tools eligible for the victim's defence. At the end of the paper, the possibilities to criminalize the act by the Penal Code are discussed.