

Abstract

^{19}F MRI contrast agents are relatively new, developing field of medical and chemical sciences. In this Theses, based on previous results in this area, new type of Ni^{2+} complex with possible ^{19}F MRI applications was synthesized and characterized by relaxometric measurements.