

In my diploma work I tried to find and described what has happened with our society after the Velvet Revolution and if young adults are really different from the generation of their parents. This work has two main parts, theoretical and practical one. In the practical part I devoted to parenthood, marriages, education, employment and friendship. I also mentioned new prodigies like falling rates of fertility, prodigy of singles which were not common during the period before the year 1989. There is my research in the second part of my work which was carried out of sixty persons.
