

This thesis is divided into two parts – the translation of the English original into Czech and the commentary describing the aforementioned translation. The text translated in this thesis is Katy Hershberger' essay Losing My Religion at Christian Camp. The commentary contains analysis of the source text, description of the chosen translation method and shifts that occurred in the translation.