

State has to ensure that the child shall not be separated from his or her parents against their will, except when competent authorities subjects to judicial review determine, in accordance with applicable law and producers, that such separation is necessary for the best interests of the child. Such determination may be necessary in a particular case such as one involving abuse or neglect of the child of the parents, or one where the parents are living separately and decision must be made to the child's place of residence. State shall respect the rights of the children who are separated from one or both parents to maintain personal relations and direkt with both on a regular basis, except basis, except if it is contrary to the child's best interest.
