

The Bachelor thesis focuses on financial management of non-profit organizations. The theoretical part defines the essence of financial management and non-profit organizations, basic forms and it describes the general development. Legislation containing chapters of establishing, functioning and liquidation of these organizations is introduced first followed by the financial management particular for non-profit organizations (eg. purposes, principles and tools of financial management). The further chapter list possible ways of fundraising with stress on approaching the donators. The remaining chapters introduce the problematics of public relations and manpower management from the point of view of a non-profit organization. The practical part contains a small survey based on questionnaires targeted at nonprofit organizations. The survey focused on financial management and how the organizations deal with it. The questionnaire show that a great number of non-profit organizations in the Czech Republic need systematical financial management and more information about this issue.
