

The ann of this thesis of archbishop of Prague Johann Friedrich von Waldstein (1642 - 1694; archbishop 1675-1694) consists in description of conflicts with Czech land assembly and state apparatus in the years 1678, 1679, 1682-1686 and 1691-1694. The last and most important continued also after his death (3rd June 1694). That time Czech clergy sent two deputies (further archbishop Daniel Ignatius Mayer of Mayem and abbot of monastery in Plassy Andreas Troyer) to Vienna, to arrange adjustment of a dispoint, which culminated on the beginning of the year 1694.

Principal chapters of this thesis deal with conflicts in the years 1682-1686 and 1691-1694 (chapters 4-7). These are based on detailed archive research, especially of sources of 1st department of National Archives in Czech republic (Archives of archiepiscope in Prague), Family archives of Waldstein, located in The Regional State Archives in Prague and Archivio Segreto Vaticano in Città del Vaticano. Some subsidiary sources I have found also in Archivum Romanum Societatis Jesu, The Regional State Archives in Litoměřice or in Archivio di Pontificia Universita Gregoriana in Italy,

Main issue of the thesis shapes four points: First one was the description of main events of the history of Prague archiepiscope (and in part also of Litoměřice episcopate), about which wrote apostolic deputy in Vienna to papal state secretary, above all in the years of 1682-1686 and 1691-1694. The second one was the research of relationes ad limina ss. Apostolorum. Johann Friedrich von Waldstein wrote in that also about the conflicts, I was dealing with. The third one is the negative findings about endeavour after beatification of Johann Friedrich von Waldstein. In Czech literature and sources till 19th century, there is a lot of evidence of this endeavour, but in Vatican archives I have found nothing about it.
