

Abstract

Title: Analysis of regional and club origin in the education of players playing the highest senior competition in the Czech Republic or the highest foreign competition in the period from 2010 to 2021.

Objectives: Find out the participation of regions and clubs that are most involved in education into the Czech highest senior competition – I. Fortuna League or the highest foreign competition in the period from 2010 to 2021.

Methods: Comparative historical research

Results: The most effective region in the criterion of the length of the time period of sports preparation of a player for the highest senior competition is the region Prague. The most effective club with the status of KA is AC Sparta Prague (577 years), the club with the status of SCM 1. FK Příbram (318 years), the club with the status of SpSM FK Frýdek Místek (57 years) and the club without status/assistance TJ Tatran Sedlčany (25 years). Clubs with amateur status ensure dominantly a higher number of first registrations in the FACR information system, however, in the U11 category there is a higher number of players registered in clubs with professional status.

Keywords: Talent, education, representation, clubs, regions, 1. league