

Abstract

This master's thesis, „A comparison of selected submission diaries from 1890-1950,“ provides a detailed and complex analysis of selected submission diaries. The objective of this study is to compare selected submission diaries in various types of institutions. Furthermore, it examines how the given submission diaries changed over time within these institutions, who recorded this information, and what information was considered important in certain periods.

The research is based on a study of archives from the following selected years: 1898, 1908, 1928, 1938 and 1948. In order to achieve the aim of this thesis, it was necessary to visit the National Archives in Prague, State Regional Archives in Prague, Prague City Archives, State County Archives in Beroun, Charles University Archives and National Museum archives.

The study comprises a detailed internal and external analysis of the individual books. Interest is taken not only in changes on the surface, such as bent page corners, but the key concerns also include, for example, observations on the usage of official stamps in the individual books.

Keywords

Submission diary, submission protocol, book, institution, archive, essential registration needs