

This bachelor's thesis on "Body image, body perception, somatoesthesia" deals with the perception and evaluation of own body by the individual. In this thesis there have been described in a brief summary the evolution and the terminology, the means of examination of the perception and evaluation of the body and also there have been given the examples of the pathology in body perception. It covers not only the physiotherapeutic but also neurological and psychological aspects of the topic. The thesis deals also with the physiotherapeutic means and with the influence of sports on the body perception.