

The subject of this thesis is the study of the least squares method with uncertain (approximate, imprecise) input data. The focus is on the description of the set of all solutions and on the effective computation of an enclosure of said set.