

This thesis explores the genre of travelogues in Russian Medieval literature. The author is interested in the origin, the formation and the evolution of the genre. She studies the genre variations and analyses the concrete literary works in the historical and cultural context. The aim of the thesis is to compile the theme of Russian medieval travelogues and try to create a complete and interesting work.