

The main object of the thesis is to outline a progress of environmental training in nursery schools in the Czech republic, its reference to activities issued from Framework Educational Programme for Pre-primary Education and characteristics of the present situation of environmental training in chosen schools. The thesis suggests the collection of topics of scrap and residual materials utilization for children works and follows the teacher's interest of using these materials in proces of education. It also tests eligibility of using the activities for children progress.