This paper describes the present state of the Czech language within the Romanian region Banat that is inhabited by a society with a Czech origin, esp. the village of Rovensko. I have had to visit this village not one due to the lack of information coming this topic. I have made numerous interviews and recorded the various types of dialect used in this region. After I analyzed the gained information, I tried to assess the present state of the Czech language used here.