Abstract

Local anesthetics are the most commonly used drugs in dentistry. This thesis provides an up-to-date summary of pharmacology and of the clinical applications of local anesthetics in stomatology. The individual chapters deal with high-risk patients, local as well as systemic adverse effects and the application of local anesthetics on children. Finally, the thesis outlines new trends in the development of local anesthesia.