The paper deals with education of women who are suffering from infertility. In the paper there is accented first – rate and right education before beginning of stimulation at the assisted reproduction programme.

In the theoretical part there is global information about infertility, its causes, diagnostics and treatment. The theory of nursing education is included.

In the practical part there is research which explores the quality of education made by nursing staff. The other goal was to explore the level of knowledges of educated patients/clients and their partners.

Searched group is composed of patients/clients who attend the Centre of assisted reproduction which is included in PPCHC s.r.o., Sanus Hradec Králové.

The outcome of this research is that there is a need of establishing standardisated education. This education would offer completed information about infertility treatment and it would help to improve the quality of nursing care.
