

Annotation

The bachelor's task is divided into two parts. The theoretical part deals with antineoplastic chemotherapy, its undesirable effects, and with the role of the nurse who takes care of a patient.

Stress is put on education and acquaintance of oncological patients while facing the undesirable effects of chemotherapy.

The research part of the task probes the degree of oncological patients' acquaintance of chemotherapy, and monitors the difficulty in dealing with undesirable effects. The results of the research also give the patients' satisfaction with the approach of nursing staff and their confidence in it. The researched sample was made up of 61 oncological patients of different ages gender and diagnoses being treated with chemotherapy.
