

Annotation

This bachelor paper is focused on the quality of the provided nursing care during application of medicaments. It provides data on the quality of nursing care, nursing standards, important information on the medicaments field, ways and principles of their administration.

The focus of the thesis is constituted by a quantitative research of the nurses' knowledge of the medicaments field and the quality of the provided nursing care when administrating medicaments; the result is the presentation of a proposal of a standard nursing procedure when administrating medicaments per os. The analysed sample is constituted by medical staff of the general nurse branch during the execution of their profession in a Central Bohemia health care institution.