

The PhD thesis deals with the issue of piano as a didactic aid in music lessons at primary schools. In view of teachers' professional competences, it establishes a set of required teacher's competences concerning piano playing and outlines specific outputs of instrumental training of pre-service graduate students. It brings out possibilities of piano application in the educational context and piano related outputs of primary school pupils.