The goal of bachelor's thesis is to analyze the evolution of the professional preparation of Spanish nurses. Enrols the first attempt to systematization of nursing education of laic nurses in the 1st half of the 19th century. Follows the process of the professional career and institutional establishment of the Spanish nursing system in the end of the 19th century and in the beginning of the 20th century. Describes the unification of various nurse professionals during the age of Franco's dictatorship, (1939-1975), and informs the readers about the process of transformation of nursing education during the democracy period.

The initiation of Spanish nursing education in the University, in 1978, was a very significant moment in the Spanish nursing history. A qualitative observational study was carried out to document the content that the Spanish nurses actually have about their educational system and completes with the information about the job opportunities of the 12 informants.
