

Abstract

The thesis "Evolution of computer magazines by example of Softwarové noviny" deals with the Czech media scene of computer magazines. First part of it takes a glimpse at the history of world computer journalism and a closer look at the history of Czech computer journalism, describes its inception and first periodicals of its kind.

The second part takes the example of the monthly Softwarové noviny and observes changes that it went through since its birth in 1991. Results of content analysis are used for describing the changes.