

This master's thesis attempts to analyse the phenomenon of love as both a medium and mechanism of particular social interactions. It focuses particularly on the aspect of media dispositive as a dynamic mediation between subjects of desire and absorption or diffusion objects.