

The aim of this work is the analysis and implementation of internet / network server capable of very quick route planning in road networks. Planning algorithms should support various road situations like forbidden (or enjoined) turns, one way roads and so on.