ABSTRACT

This bachelor thesis shows four basic ways how to introduce trigonometric and cyclometric functions. The work is primarily intended for high school students who have encountered some of these introductions at school. The aim of the bachelor thesis is to show comprehensive definitions of trigonometric functions and cyklometric functions according to various methods and to present their basic properties. The aim of the work is also to show the difference and transition between introductions and their equivalence.