The title of the bachelor thesis:

Case Study of Physiotherapy Treatment of a Patient with Diagnosis Guillain-Barré syndrome.

The aim of the bachelor thesis:

This thesis consists of two parts - a theoretical part and a case study. The subject of the case study is a 53-year-old male patient who has inflammatory demyelinating polyradiculoneuropathy. The case study is composed of the anamnesis of the patient, initial kinesiological examination, final kinesiological examination, and therapeutic procedures the patient underwent. The theoretical part contains basic theoretical knowledge, such as the epidemiology, origin, clinical picture, diagnostic methods, treatment options, including GBS rehabilitation options.
