

Abstract

The main subject of this thesis is the Europeanisation of anti-corruption laws in the Czech Republic in the time period 2009-2014. Specifically is examined the influence of the European Commission on the approved anti-corruption laws in the Czech Republic. The thesis consists of two main parts, theoretical and research. In the theoretical part are defined corruption and anti-corruption laws for the purpose of the research. Furthermore, the theoretical part describes the Europeanisation and anti-corruption policy of the European Commission, including all its actors and instruments at the disposal of the European Commission. The research part is also divided into two parts. The first part summarises the Europeanisation of all anti-corruption laws adopted in the Czech Republic between 16 September 2009 and 31 October 2014. The second part focuses in detail on the Europeanisation of the Public Procurement Act. The aim of the research is to show how many of the adopted anti-corruption laws were Europeanised and in what way.
