The bachelor thesis deals with competencies in nursing from the perspective of general nurses.

The theoretical part is divided into five chapters, which describe the history of nursing, current educational process of nursing, competencies in the nursing profession according to legislation, their legal responsibility and the concept of nursing issued by the Ministry of Health in 2021.

The empirical part of the thesis presents the results of a questionnaire survey carried out at the Regional Hospital Liberec. Its aim was to find out the opinion of general nurses in practice on the current state of competencies and subsequently to find out whether they are interested in expanding them.
