

Abstract

The bachelor's thesis deals with the historical development, organization, competencies of the military administration of the first Czechoslovak Republic and the Czech Republic after 1993. The comparison of military administration in the above stages analyzes differences and similarities in these historical periods. It also includes less important parts dealing with military administration in the meantime of monitored entities. The work also deals with the development of the army, which is closely connected with the military administration.